

Famed Actress Marilyn Monroe, 36, Is Dead

Idol Of Millions Believed A Victim Of Sleeping Pills

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Blonde and beautiful Marilyn Monroe, a glamorous symbol of the gay, exciting life of Hollywood, died tragically Sunday.

Her body was found nude in a bed, a probable suicide. She was 36.

Clutched Telephone

The long-troubled star clutched a telephone in one hand. An empty bottle of sleeping pills was nearby.

Miss Monroe, fired from her last movie, had been in seclusion for weeks at her rambling Spanish-style bungalow in Brentwood. At midnight her housekeeper, Eunice Murray, noticed a light in the actress' bedroom.

The light was still on at 3 a.m., and Mrs. Murray got no answer when she called to her mistress and knocked on the door. It was locked. Alarmed, she called Miss Monroe's physician, Dr. Ralph Greenstein.

Found Her Dead

He arrived and broke a bedroom window with a fireplace poker. He entered the room and found Miss Monroe in bed, face down. He said later she appeared to be dead, but he called another physician, Dr. Hyman Engelberg. The latter pronounced her dead and summoned police at 4:20 a.m.

They told police Sgt. Joseph Clemens that she was in bed nude, the covers pulled up to her neck. In her hand was a telephone, which was off the hook. On the table next to the bed were numerous bottles, including an empty container of nembutal, a drug to induce sleep.

Police said no notes were found. A coroner's representative said an early investigation indicated suicide.

Shortly thereafter, an autopsy was held, but county Coroner Theodore Curphey said results were inconclusive.

"We do know it was not a natural death," he said, "but further tests will have to be made."

He said it may take several days before it can be determined how she died.

Miss Monroe's attorney, Milton Ruden, appeared at the home and said he had spoken to her Friday night to discuss a meeting Monday.

Good Spirits

"She seemed in good enough spirits," he said. "Naturally she felt very bad that she was not able to finish the movie, 'Something's Got to Give.'"

"We were still negotiating to resume the picture and she was happy about that possibility."

The actress had been depressed since she was fired from the film in June by the studio where she rose to fame, 20th Century-Fox.

The studio dismissed her and sued for $2 million damages. It claimed she was malingering. She

She added: "Fame was a special burden, which I might as well state here and now. I don't mind being burdened with being glamorous and sexual. But what goes with it can be a burden."

The end of her life was marked inauspiciously. A coroner's representative covered her slim body with a simple blue cotton blanket and put it in the cargo space of his blue station wagon. He drove to a mortuary in nearby Westwood Village, and later her body was taken to the county morgue.

Born Out Of Wedlock

Marilyn's beginnings were humble. She was born out of wedlock in Los Angeles County General Hospital on June 1, 1926. Her mother was a movie cutter named Gladys Baker. Her father was a handsome Danish immigrant named Edward Mortensen.

He disappeared before Marilyn was born.

Soviet Resumes Nuclear Testing

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — The Soviet Union exploded a big nuclear bomb high in the atmosphere Sunday.

Swedish scientists estimated it to be in the 40-megaton range, second only to the Soviet 50-ton bomb set off last fall. A Norwegian scientist said his instruments showed only that it was smaller than that one and U.S. officials would say only that it was "in the megaton range."

20-Megaton Range

The blast was estimated to be in the 20-megaton range by the Japanese Meteorological Agency. Whatever the size, the blast carried out Premier Khrushchev's threat to resume testing in retaliation for U.S. Pacific tests.

Uppsala University's Seismological Institute, which classified the blast as in the range of 40 million tons of TNT, said it occurred at a higher altitude than the Soviet series of 1961, which was climaxed by the superbomb.

Recordings at the institute indicated the test was carried out at the Soviet atomic testing ground on the island of Novaya Zemlya, in Siberia, about 1,350 miles east of Uppsala.

In Washington, the State Department deplored Soviet resumption of atmospheric testing as a "sombre episode." In Japan, only nation to feel the wrath of an atomic bomb in wartime, a government spokesman said the new Soviet testing "is regrettable for world peace."

The big blast appeared to have kicked off a new round of Soviet military maneuvers in the far north, designed among other things to test new nuclear weapons.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry refused to comment on the report of a new test, and tight security blanketed the military maneuvers in the Arctic Circle. The Soviet government announced two weeks ago, however, that land, sea and air maneuvers would begin Sunday.

Now said the Soviet Union is believed to have trained the United States in the development of compact nuclear weapons for its ground forces. Such weapons have

Dr. Soblen To Go To Israel; Not U.S.

Kennedy Backs Drug Bill

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — President Kennedy is backing a series of amendments to a pending drug control bill to give the government greater power to remove unsafe or ineffectual drugs from the market, the summer White House disclosed Sunday.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger announced that the amendments, covering 25 pages of text, were sent to Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of a judiciary subcommittee which now has the bill.

Under present law the government would have had to go to court and establish a case before it could remove a drug such as thalidomide from the market, once it had been licensed.

Never Licensed

Thalidomide, now blamed for deformation of thousands of babies born in Europe, never was licensed in the United States.

The President Saturday approved award of a gold medal and citation to Dr. Frances O. Kelsey, the medical officer of the Food and Drug Administration who refused approval of thalidomide for human use in this country.

Her First Film

Her first film was "Scudda Hoo, Scudda Hay," and she had one line: "Hello." It was later cut.

In our last interview before she was fired from "Something's Got to Give," she recalled those early days: "I was fired from Fox at 22 and fired from Columbia at 23. They told me I should go home. I told them I WAS home: I lived here!"

She giggled and continued: "Then came 'Asphalt Jungle' and 'All About Eve.' (Darryl) Zanuck signed me to a contract because he decided I had a third dimension—and this was before 3D. He thought it had something to do with sex, but he wasn't sure what it was."

Monroe Buildup

But the Monroe buildup was one of the greatest in Hollywood history. Oddly, it was largely self-propelling, with only a nudge from press agents.

When it was revealed that she had posed in the nude for calendar art during her hungry years, she feared the news would destroy her career. Far from it. The revelation only added to her legend, and in later years she happily autographed copies of the pose, which had been printed millions of times.

Mainly it was Marilyn herself who sailed her career ahead. She sparkled in interviews, tossing off wisecracks that were quoted everywhere.

When asked what she had on when she posed for the calendar, she replied: "The radio."

Marilyn's value as a movie draw caught up with her publicity in films like "Niagara," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and "How to Succeed in Love."

Now she was on top, and she was to stay there until her death Sunday. Everything she did was news, every facet of her personality was analyzed. Her paralyzing tardiness drew special attention.

Never On Time

She couldn't be on time. She might keep an interviewer waiting an hour or two while she was in the next room.

Her tardiness on movie sets grew worse as her career progressed.

Her firing from "Something's Got to Give" was the first time any studio had taken disciplinary action against her.

Her second and third marriages were marked by headlines. She fell in love with the iconic baseball great Joe DiMaggio and they were married in 1954. The marriage lasted only nine months and she sued for divorce, saying he was uncommunicative.

Moved To New York

In the late 1950s she became unhappy with Hollywood and moved to New York, where she studied at the theater and fell in love with the serious playwright, Arthur Miller.

They were married in 1956. She sought the quiet life as a housewife in Connecticut. Her efforts to have children ended in miscarriage. Last year the marriage ended, following her appearance in "The Misfits," which he wrote for her.

Mrs. Finkbine In Sweden Seeking Legal Abortion

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Tired and weary-eyed, Sherri Finkbine came to Sweden on Sunday to seek abortion of the baby she fears may be deformed by the drug thalidomide.

"I am hoping and praying that the Swedish medical men will be able to help me quickly," said Mrs. Finkbine, 30, who failed to get approval for an abortion from a court in her home state of Arizona.

With her schoolteacher husband, Robert, the attractive brunette flew into Stockholm from Copenhagen after a transpolar flight from Los Angeles.

They announced that they will see a Swedish doctor Monday in the first step of a complicated procedure to obtain medical sanction to abort her pregnancy of nearly three months.

"We hope not to have to wait but if necessary we will do it," Mrs. Finkbine said. "We know there is no 100 per cent certainty of being granted an abortion here but at least we think we will get a fair judgment on reasonable medical and not moral grounds, and after all, several American doctors have strongly supported our case."

Mrs. Finkbine retired at a Stockholm hotel and slept several hours. Her husband, accompanied by reporters, spent more than an hour touring the city.

Finkbine again criticized the publicity that has been given their case. After reports that they would seek an abortion abroad, he said, "some crank, I don't know who," booked tickets in their name for Sweden on Friday, a day before they actually arranged for passage.

He said a friend of the family paid for their trip and their four children are staying with grandparents in the States. "You know," he said, "I am a teacher and my economic situation is not too good."

Fears Deformed Child

Mrs. Finkbine, star of a Phoenix children's television program, fears her expected child might be born with a deformation because she took thalidomide in the early stages of her pregnancy. Thalidomide is blamed for thousands of armless and legless babies born in Europe, Australia and Canada.

The Arizona court refused the Finkbines' appeal for a legal abortion, because the only ground on which it could be granted would be if the mother's life were in danger.

Sweden permits abortions under certain conditions. The Royal Medical Board has authorized several women who took thalidomide to have abortions.

Mrs. Finkbine faces an agonizing wait before Swedish medical authorities make their decision.

Dr. Karl-Inge Oester of the Royal Medical Board said each legal abortion "must be preceded by a penetrating investigation of the reasons."

Other Swedish medical sources said the Finkbines must expect to stay here for at least two or three weeks. Her American doctor has been quoted as saying that a Caesarean section might be necessary if she carried the child beyond Sunday.

Urges Recall As Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., said Sunday he has urged the temporary recall of the U.S. ambassador to Moscow to protest and dramatize anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union.

Dodd was asked on a taped television program whether he is convinced anti-Semitism in the U.S.S.R. is a serious matter. Dodd said yes.

When asked what this country could do about it, he replied: "Well we can do several things. I haven't said this publicly before, but I have written to the secretary of state and suggested that we call back our ambassador and announce why we are calling him back—for consultation about this anti-Semitism in Russia."

"Now this is a kind of an effective thing. I think these people will pay attention. We have done it on other occasions. We ought to let them know that we don't like it and that it shouldn't go on."

The State Department had no comment on the Dodd request.

Fishing Crew Picked Up

PETERHEAD, Scotland (AP) — The 10-man crew of the Peterhead fishing boat Daisy was picked up by a Danish trawler Sunday after clinging to a storm-lashed raft in the North Sea for 20 hours.

The Daisy went down in rough seas about 40 miles east of the Orkney Islands on Saturday, when homeward bound from the Shetland fishing grounds.

Wife: "I've changed my mind." Husband: "Thank heavens. Does it work better now?"

Expects To Renew Freedom Battle

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Cabinet stood firm Sunday against permitting an Israeli airliner to fly Dr. Robert A. Soblen from Britain to the United States. His attorney said the convicted spy may be back by Thursday to begin a legal battle to remain in Israel.

A communique issued after a Cabinet meeting declared that an Israeli plane would carry the 61-year-old psychiatrist "back to Israel only and under no circumstances to the United States."

The Cabinet stand reiterated an earlier reply to Britain, which has given Israel's El Al Airline until Wednesday midnight to get the fugitive out of Britain. Under life sentence in the United States for spying for the Soviet Union, Soblen is in London's Brixton Prison.

The Lithuanian-born fugitive skipped $100,000 bail in June and fled to Israel. Israel ejected him July 1 aboard an El Al plane. Just before the plane landed in London he stabbed himself in the stomach and slashed his wrists and has been there since, fighting to stay out of the United States.

Britain's position is that El Al brought Soblen to London and should complete the trip. Israel says Britain has no right to tell El Al what to do.

The communique said the Cabinet agreed that:

1. The original order to eject Soblen from Israel still stands.

2. That in view of the fact that it was an Israeli plane which took Soblen to Britain, the Israel government feels obliged to take him out again if Britain insists on this.

3. That an Israeli plane will take Soblen to Israel only, and under no circumstances to the United States.

The unanimous Cabinet decision was reached after hearing a report by Foreign Minister Golda Meir. It was relayed to British Ambassador Patrick Hancock.

Soblen's Tel Aviv lawyer, Dr. Ari Ankorian, welcomed the Israeli government's "decision to right the wrong which it did to Soblen and not to extradite him to the United States."

Saying Soblen may return by Thursday, Ankorian announced he first will ask Israel authorities not to keep his client under arrest. Ankorian said Soblen has no plans to run away from Israel.

Ankorian then will seek an Israeli Supreme Court order directing Interior Minister Moshe Chaim Shapiro to explain to the high court why Soblen could not be granted immigrant status.

Reids Offer Visa

Informed sources said, however, that if Soblen comes here, he will be given a choice of country to go to, provided a visa for his new destination is available. The government is aware of a report that Communist Czechoslovakia offered to grant him refugee, they added.

Soblen is expected to be detained by police acting on the basis of the earlier expulsion order, the informants said.

Reports circulated here that if El Al will not fly Soblen to New York, Britain might place him aboard a Pan American World Airways plane for the United States.

The Israeli government has been sharply criticized at home for the manner of Soblen's expulsion, and last month had to beat down two no-confidence motions submitted to Parliament by political opponents.

While refusing to permit Soblen, a Jew, to enter Israel as an immigrant, the cabinet has begun an investigation of the secret manner of his expulsion.

Ankorian never was notified of the expulsion order.

Also under investigation is the presence of a U.S. marshal aboard the plane that left Israel for London. The Israeli government had announced Soblen was being expelled as an undesirable immigrant, and was not being extradited to the United States.

Vietnamese Fight For 'Dead Zone'

KONTUM, Viet Nam (AP) — Struggling against Viet Cong infiltrators, suspicious tribesmen and nature herself, American and Vietnamese forces are trying to carve out a "dead zone" in the mist-shrouded mountains along the Laos border. The object is to crush guerrilla supply lines into South Viet Nam.

Northeast of Kontum Town, past the last Vietnamese army outposts along the Krang Pako River, high mountains stretch into Laos barely 20 miles away.

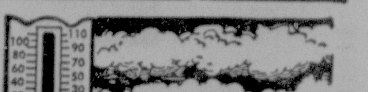

Within this heavily forested region, about 50 miles long, the Ho Chi Minh Trail—the name given to dozens of bush tracks leading in from Laos—penetrates into South Viet Nam. It is a gateway for supplies and reinforcements for the Communist Viet Cong movement.

Americans here have discovered that the key point for control of this mountainous corridor is the allegiance of the mountain peoples scattered in tiny villages in the valleys and mountain sides.

The Viet Cong have held sway over the region for years with terror and intimidation. Americans are pushing a policy of cooperation, assistance and personal relations with the suspicious tribesmen to win them over.

Only the mountain people, Americans here say, have the endurance to stand the long wet nights, the desolate mountain valleys, and the tangled jungle.

Foreman Defends Work In Fatal Pennsy Crash

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—A Pennsylvania Railroad foreman has told the Public Utility Commission that the track blamed for a fatal derailment near Steelton, Pa., Saturday, July 28, was sufficiently anchored.

However the foreman did admit that the usual number of anchors were not installed the day before the crash, which claimed 19 lives and injured more than 100.

Commissioner William F. O'Hara of the Public Utility Commission said the foreman reported the normal number of anchors were not installed Friday because it was quitting time and the crew intended to finish the job the following Monday.

O'Hara said the foreman reported the tracks were not out of align and they were securely anchored.

Blamed On Track
The railroad has blamed the crash on track out of alignment, caused by the maintenance gang's failure to install enough track anchors.

O'Hara said the utility commission so far has been unable to confirm the cause of the crash as stated by the railroad.

O'Hara said the commission's investigation showed two other trains passed over the track prior to the Harrisburg to Philadelphia baseball special which was wrecked. Five cars of the nine-car special were derailed and three of them tumbled into the shallow Susquehanna River. One of those trains had been instructed to go slow over the area where the crews had been working. O'Hara said the commission learned.

Maintenance crews had been working in the Steelton area the week before the crash. O'Hara said the only person interviewed so far that said the tracks were faulty was the engineer, J.F. Shue of Royaltown, Pa. O'Hara said Shue was the only one in a position to say whether the tracks were correctly aligned at the time of the accident.

Meanwhile president Michael J. Quill of the Transport Workers Union said in New York "manpower shortage, not manpower failure," caused the wreck.

The union leader described the railroad's indictment of the maintenance employees as being responsible for the wreck as "more than a fraud. It is disgraceful display of irresponsibility not only to the workers but to the public who are entitled to ride in safety without fear."

Quill said "where layoffs, deferred maintenance and mergers are railroad policy, danger rides the rails. Blaming the workers is a coverup for the Pennsy's own mismanagement policies."

A transport workers union spokesman said the union does not represent the three foremen who have been suspended because of the accident. The spokesman added, however, that the union does represent non-operating employees, such as track workers.

Tobyhanna Signal Depot Placed Under New Setup

EFFECTIVE Aug. 1, the U.S. Army installation at Tobyhanna acquired a new "boss".

Under the command of the Signal Corps since its opening in 1954, the installation was placed under the supervision of the newly created U.S. Army Supply and Maintenance Command with headquarters in Washington, D.C. The immediate effect of the order will be reflected in a soon-to-be announced official name change. The depot will continue to specialize in communication-electronic equipment as it has since 1954.

The new command is a product of the Army logistical reorganization plan currently being executed. It centralizes the supervision of supply and maintenance operations that were before handled independently by several separate commands.

Under the direction of Lt. Gen. August Schomburg, the Supply and Maintenance Command will be composed of some 80,000 civilian and 4,000 military personnel at more than 150 locations throughout the United States.

With approximately 3,000 civilian and military personnel, the Tobyhanna depot will be one of the largest employers in the group.

Basically, the new command is responsible for furnishing equipment and supplies, such as weapons, clothing, ammunition, communications gear, etc., to the Army wherever it may be. It also must repair and rebuild used equipment to new condition.

General Schomburg came to the Supply and Maintenance Command from the Army Ordnance Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., where he commanded the organization responsible for the development of such famed Army missiles as the Nike Zeus anti-missile system and the "shoot-and-ecoot" Pershing ballistic missile.

He is a native of Denver, Col., and a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy (West Point), Class of 1931.

The U.S. Army Packaging Standards Office at Tobyhanna, formerly a separate activity under the U.S. Army Signal Supply Agency, also comes under the direction of the new command.

British Entry In Common Market May Be Delayed

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Deadlock over crucial farm issues threatened Sunday to bar Britain's bid to enter the European Common Market for months, perhaps years.

A 15½-hour session failed to bring agreement on British demands for protection for Canadian, Australian and New Zealand agriculture, and the negotiators wearily broke off the talks at dawn.

One delegate, Dutch Economics Minister Jan de Pous, said the stalemate would make Britain's entry into the booming economic family impossible before Jan. 1, 1964.

Negotiations are not scheduled to resume before next October.

Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, top British negotiator, said all the matters to be settled had been reviewed and that he would submit an interim report to his government.

Later in the day, Heath left for London after telling newsmen,

Useful Progress

"We have covered as much ground as is possible at this stage." He said a "great deal of useful progress" was made. He noted that "broad lines of a solution" were worked out on problems which three other Commonwealth countries—India, Pakistan and Ceylon—would encounter.

Adequate safeguards for Commonwealth farm exports is regarded as the key to British parliamentary approval of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan government's bid to enter the market—now consisting of Germany, France, Luxembourg, Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy—which has revolutionized Europe's economy.

The ministerial council of the six countries agreed on one concession, providing for "reasonable export opportunities" for Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

But the negotiators were stymied on a British request to guarantee "comparable outlets" for food exports into the enlarged Common Market such as the three nations now enjoy under imperial preference.

Special Guarantee

The six also failed to reach agreement on a special guarantee for New Zealand dairy exports to Britain. Dairy exports represent more than 70 per cent of New Zealand's total foreign currency earnings.

Britain found no encouragement for its demand for consultations in case of "a sudden and substantial decline" in agricultural exports to the enlarged Common Market.

The opposing view was that the market's price policy system would be unworkable if decisions on price levels were made dependent on consultations with a third country.

Italian Trade Minister Emilio Colombo said another problem still to be solved was a list of commodities, important to the Commonwealth, for which Britain has asked duty-free entry into the enlarged Common Market.

Declines Recorded In Pa. Unemployment Payments

DECLINES were recorded in both initial and continued claims for unemployment compensation benefits filed in Pennsylvania during the week ended July 27, A. Allen Sulcove, Secretary of Labor and Industry, reported today.

Secretary Sulcove noted that continued claims dropped 5,806 from the preceding week to a total of 170,541. He said that most of the decrease was caused by the resumption of work in textile, apparel, tobacco processing, boot and shoe establishments after vacation shutdowns. Continued claims were 32,954 below the number filed in the same week a year ago.

The State official said that initial claims declined nine percent to 29,875, mainly due to fewer plant shutdowns for vacations. He pointed out that an upsurge in initial claims for the second consecutive week from bituminous mining because of temporary layoffs kept the initial claims drop from being more substantial.

In addition to claims filed under the regular State Unemployment Compensation program, Secretary Sulcove reported 66 compensable claims filed under the TEC program. Included in this group were 55 claimants who had exhausted their benefits under the State Unemployment Compensation program. The balance was comprised of one veteran and 10 Federal employees who exhausted their benefits under the Federal Unemployment Compensation Law.

During the reported week, 143,382 UC checks totaling $4,357,334 were issued to UC claimants under the State program. In addition, 627 TEC checks amounting to $16,464 were issued.

Sen. Scott Proposes New Medal For Peace Corps Work

Associated Press Special Service WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said today he will introduce a bill creating a special medal for award to Peace Corps volunteers for their efforts in the face of hardship or exceptional circumstances.

Scott made the announcement after completion of his bi-weekly television-radio show taped for Pennsylvania stations. R. Sargent Shriver, Peace Corps director, was Scott's guest.

In their discussion, Scott queried Shriver on his opinion on striking some sort of medal for exceptional work by individuals in the Peace Corps.

Shriver said some consideration had been given to the idea of awarding special certificates of commendation. But as for a medal, he said, this should be left to Congress.

In reviewing work of the Peace Corps, Shriver said the organization now has about 1,100 men and women overseas. Another 3,000 are in training in the United States, he said.

By October, Shriver said, the corps expects to have about 4,000 volunteers serving overseas.

"We are now working in 15 countries and everyone of these countries has asked us to double or triple or even quadruple the number of Peace Corps volunteers which we sent there at the beginning," he said.

The number of countries in which the Peace Corps will serve should reach 35 or 40 by October, he added.

He reported that about 180 Pennsylvania men and women now are serving as volunteers in the corps.

"In addition to that, we have had a wonderful record of cooperation with Pennsylvania institutions of higher education training Peace Corps volunteers for service abroad," said Shriver.

He said the University of Pennsylvania right now is training people to go to Ceylon. Penn State has trained nearly all the people who have gone to the Philippines and the University of Pittsburgh has a training program also, he said.

Shriver also cited Peace Corps officials who have come from Pennsylvania, among them Glenn Ferguson, former assistant to the chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, chief Peace Corps representative in Thailand, and Dr. Alexander Hare, of Haverford College, who has been working in the Philippines.

Reservist Cites Tops In Safety

A reservist on two weeks active duty at the U.S. Army depot in Tobyhanna captured top honors in the Safety Roadeo held Thursday at the huge installation. Sp4 Dale Hiatt of the 809th Signal Company (USAR), Logansport, Ind., achieved the highest grades in both written and driving tests.

The Roadeo, sponsored jointly by the Pocono Mts. Jaycees and the depot Safety Office, was held on the grounds on the post Motor Pool. Taking part were soldiers and civilians whose chief occupation is the driving of Army motor vehicles.

Second place winner was Charles Romanic, 830 Marion St., Scranton, a truck driver, and third spot went to Fred Larnard, Daleville, a tractor-trailer operator.

Trophies were presented by Depot Commander Col. L. W. Kale. Stanley Grace, Stroudsburg, chairman of the Jaycees program, conducted the tests.

Q. May I continue my Blue Cross membership if I leave my place of employment or if the firm I work for should go out of business?

A. Yes! Because Blue Cross operates without profit and because we are backed by our community hospitals, which were the original supporters of Blue Cross, we are able to extend membership on a non-group basis to persons who leave their place of employment or who are forced out of work when a firm goes out of business.

Each year, thousands of persons take advantage of this valuable Blue Cross membership option which enables them to retain many benefits they have accrued as group members. These advantages gained from the opportunity to continue membership on a non-group basis are available only through Blue Cross.

Missing Area Man Found On Sunday

TOBYHANNA—John Shimko, Sr., 76, of Tobyhanna, is out of the woods, where he spent more than 50 hours over the weekend.

Shimko took a bucket and a 10-quart pail Friday at 10 a.m. to go huckleberry picking near his home. He was last seen by a neighbor, Kenneth Beeher, Tobyhanna, walking along the right-of-way of the Erie Lackawanna Railroad, three-quarters of a mile from his home.

The next time he was seen was 12:30 p.m. Sunday by two unidentified fishermen and Lawrence Fetterman, Conyngham, at Brady's Lake, some nine miles to the west of Tobyhanna off Route 940, near Pocono Lake.

Search Started

Shimko's family notified Mount Pocono State Police of Shimko's absence at 8:45 p.m. Friday night. State Police, aided by members of the Tobyhanna United States Army Depot Rescue Team and Coolbaugh Volunteer Fire Department went into the woods, looking for Shimko.

The search continued Saturday with a bloodhound brought from Harrisburg, to aid the searchers. His handler said the dog was fooled because the dampness of the ground carried away Shimko's scent as it dried.

Fire departments from Gouldsboro, Mount Pocono, Jackson Township, Pocono Township and the Civil Air Patrol with the East Stroudsburg

Civil Defense unit joined the Friday night search party on Saturday.

Meanwhile, Shimko told police later, he had been picking berries into the bucket and returning to put them in the 10-quart pail. Late Friday afternoon, he went to put berries in the pail and was unable to find it. After that, he just kept walking.

Wandered About

He wandered out of the woods near two fishermen at 12:30 p.m. yesterday. They gave him a sandwich to eat when he told them he was hungry. Fetterman said he asked Shimko how old he was and if he was the man everyone was looking for. Receiving an affirmative answer, Fetterman took him home.

He was examined by a local physician and found to be in good health.

One spokesman for the more than 225 men who tramped the marshy woodland during the search said, "He looked better than the members of the search parties."

The Salvation Army supplied a canteen unit from Scranton Sunday and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Coolbaugh Township Volunteer Fire Company served supper for the searchers in the firehall Saturday.

Participating squadrons were from Carbondale, Scranton, Honesdale, Clarks Summit, Boyerstown, Bloomsburg, Allentown, Hazleton, Wilkes-Barre, Bethlehem, Clifton Heights and Gordon.

Van Zandt To Visit Area In August

THE Hon. James Van Zandt, United States Congressman from this area and candidate for the U.S. Senate on the Republican ticket, will visit Monroe County on Monday, Aug. 27, it was announced yesterday by Harold Kresge, state committeeman and 1962 Republican Campaign Chairman for the county. Further details about the place and type of meeting will be announced as soon as they have been completed.

Meanwhile, Kresge has set up the first of a series of political action meetings which will cover the entire county. The early meetings will be limited to committeemen and committeewomen within the five areas of the county. At these regional meetings, they will select their own committees to work at the grass root township level for the coming elections.

The first such regional meeting will be held in Pocono Twp. on Tuesday, Aug. 7, at 8 p.m. in the S&S Industry Bldg., Henryville Road. Taking part will be committeemen and women from northern scheduled for Wednesday night, Aug. 8, at 9 p.m. at Mountain and southern Hamilton, Barrett, Paradise and Pocono Twp.

The second meeting has been Manor, Marshalls Creek. The hour was set to permit those interested to attend the picnic sponsored by the Monroe Council of Republican Women that night at 6:30 at the Minnick summer home at Minnick Hills. Taking part in the 9 p.m. meeting will be Republican representatives from Price, Middle Smithfield, Smithfield, and Delaware Water Gap.

The third meeting will be in the former school at Mount Pocono, now the municipal building, on Thursday night, Aug. 9, at 8 p.m. Planning the campaign for that area will be Republican committeemen and women from eastern and western Tobyhanna Twp., eastern and western Coolbaugh Twp., Tunkhannock and the borough of Mt. Pocono.

Mayors To Discuss Plans For Boroughs

MAYOR Joseph Small, of Stroudsburg, and Mayor Thomas Kistler, East Stroudsburg, will have an informal chat with the Pocono Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce tonight in the Penn-Stroud at 7 p.m.

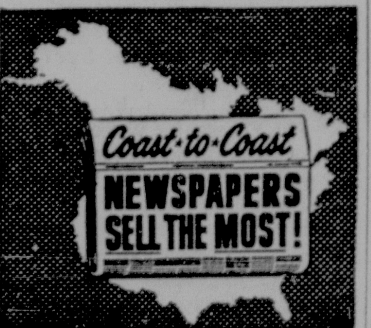

The two men will give highlights of plans now in operation and projected plans for the future of the two boroughs and areas in which the JC group will be able to be of assistance.

A question and answer session will follow each mayor's talk. All young men in the area between the ages of 21 and 35 are invited to attend.

Funeral Of Mrs. Gregory Is Held

Interment was in Gilbert Cemetery. Pallbearers were Don Acherson, Robert Gregory, Theil Feller, Edward Arnold, Wilmer Anglemeyer and Stewart Smith.

Henryville Sailor In Quebec Visit

QUEBEC CITY, Canada (FHTNC) — Midshipman third class John H. Ruehlman Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ruehlman, of Route 1, Henryville, Pa., is among 23 Midshipmen who spent a week in Quebec City, Canada, while serving aboard the anti-submarine destroyer USS Conway.

The Midshipmen, from various colleges and universities, are spending seven weeks aboard the Conway for training purposes. The summer cruises afford the Midshipmen with the opportunity to learn first-hand what it is like to work and live aboard a ship for an extended period of time. The training prepares the future officers for naval service.

CRUSHES LEG — Front-end loader is shown where it stalled after the accident which crushed the right leg of Stephen Miller, 19, who was operating the machine on the Wade Rinker property, Paradise Valley.

Youth Loses Leg After Accident

STEPHEN MILLER, 19, son of Mrs. Anna Mae Miller, East Stroudsburg, RD 3, was listed in fair condition last night in Monroe County General Hospital after his right leg was amputated Saturday afternoon.

The operation was necessitated after his leg was crushed beneath a front-end loader which overturned Saturday at noon on the Wade Rinker property, Paradise Valley.

Miller was operating the loader and had the scoop full of dirt. As the scoop rose, the machine tipped off balance and overturned, crushing his right leg.

Rinker took Miller to the hospital where the operation was performed.

Miller has been employed with the Arthur Debus Road Construction Company since early in the Summer as a heavy equipment operator. He was building a driveway on the Rinker property at the time of the accident.

One Killed, Four Injured In Accident Near Lehighton

ONE man was killed and four persons injured Saturday in a three-car accident on the North-eastern Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike three miles north of the Mahoning Valley Interchange, near Lehighton.

State Police from the Pocono Barracks identified the dead man as Edward M. Korval, 39, of 104 Arch St., Edwinstown. His wife, Rhea, 30, was admitted to Gnad-en Huetten Hospital, Lehighton, with extensive cuts of the scalp and a compound fracture of the left leg. A spokesman for the hospital said last night that Mrs. Korval was in satisfactory condition.

Vincent Peterson, 48, of 2100 Willow Brook Dr., Huntington Valley, driver of the second car, was admitted to Gnad-en Huetten Hospital with head injuries. He was listed in fair condition.

A passenger in the Peterson car, Martin Osborne, 18, of 1911 Township Line, Hathor, was in fair condition with head injuries and a broken ankle.

Peterson's son, John, 18, was treated for a puncture wound of the lip and released.

Passengers in the third car, driven by Michael J. McCarthy, 233 E. Magnolia St., Lakeland, Fla., were not injured.

The Korval and Peterson vehicles, identical sedans, were demolished. Estimated damage to the McCarthy vehicle was $25.

State Police said the Korval car crossed the medial strip, clipped the rear of the McCarthy vehicle and hit the Peterson vehicle head-on.

Included with the letters were copies of a resolution by the Montgomery County Bar Association dated June 20 which endorsed his candidacy.

A vacancy occurred on the court earlier this summer with the death of Justice Curtis Bok.

James Detrick Heart Diseases Top Death Causes In Monroe In 1961

JAMES DETRICK, 59, of 120 Elizabeth St., East Stroudsburg, was in critical condition last night in Monroe County General Hospital.

He was admitted with extensive head injuries following a two-car accident at 1 a.m. Sunday in Knowlton Township, Warren County, N. J. The driver of the other vehicle was unharmed.

New Jersey State Police said Detrick was driving west on Route 611 when the 1953 sedan he was driving went out of control and hit a stone wall on the right shoulder. The car bounced back and crossed the center divider.

As the sedan crossed into the eastbound lane, it struck a 1959 sedan operated by Anthony Martone, 16 Meadow Lane, Bayville, N. Y.

Police said damages to the Detrick vehicle included both sides of the front and the left rear. The Martone car was damaged on the left rear.

Trooper Norman Denker is investigating the accident.

Eagles Endorse Medicare Bill

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Fraternal Order of Eagles has endorsed the principles of the King-Anderson Bill, calling for medical care for the aged under Social Security.

The Eagles backed the program with a resolution passed at the closing session of their 64th annual international convention here Saturday.

The group also passed a resolution urging Congress to authorize payment of some $73 million (m) to the Philippines as the balance of some $389 million (m) owed in war claims.

The organization also called for a presidential executive order to change the Fair Practices Law and ban job discrimination because of age, and expressed support for the President Kennedy's physical fitness campaign.

The Eagles, and its ladies auxiliary, wound up the joint convention with a colorful parade, the installation of new officers, and a grand ball. Some 25,000 men and women attended the convention.

Why Hesitate?

It became evident to a couple of Congressmen several years ago that income tax rate reform was necessary if the United States was to maintain a high rate of economic growth. So, Reps. A. S. Herlong Jr., (D, Fla.) and Howard H. Baker (R, Tenn.) introduced the Herlong-Baker bills.

Now nearly everyone is beginning to realize that our high tax rates are slowing down growth and causing continued unemployment. Administration spokesmen have been particularly vocal on this point lately.

To meet the needs for a beginning to tax rate reform that can be managed quickly by Congress, Reps. Herlong and Baker now have introduced a simplified version of their original proposal. It would carry out their original idea of five-years of step-by-step lowering of personal and corporate tax rates, but would not in one bill adjust gift and estate and capital gains taxes, or depreciation treatment.

This new Herlong-Baker bill would give everyone at least a 25 percent reduction in his personal taxes over five years, and top tax rates on individuals and corporations would be reduced in the same period to 42 percent.

One of the prime reasons that the Herlong-Baker approach to income tax rate reform is superior to other proposals is that it protects the Federal Government from sudden large losses of revenue, and resulting large deficits.

The Congressmen estimate that Federal tax collections would fall only about a billion dollars in 1963, and during 1964 the rate reductions would cost $3.7 billion—on paper. But the surge of economic growth that would happen, raising the taxable incomes of both individuals and corporations, would wipe out part of this paper loss quickly, and all of it eventually. In a few years, the Federal Government would receive more revenue under the new lower rates than it could have expected under the present high ones.

There is agreement that taxes must be cut. This is the way to reduce them.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Railroad Ingenuity

Not all railroad passenger service is giving up the ghost while the road presidents wring their hands, protesting that they have no other choice. Some roads are doing what other business men do, trying new attractions to bring in trade.

Thus the Reading Railroad has been running weekly Iron Horse Rambles from Philadelphia to points of interest such as Gettysburg. They do not merely let their passengers get on board and then forget about them. Every seat is provided with souvenirs, extensive schedules and historical notes. When the train passes rare types of locomotives, it stops to allow picture-taking. A bus tour of the Gettysburg battlefield is included in the trip to that area.

The Nickel Plate railroad has been holding mystery trips, the destiny remaining unrevealed after tantalizing hints as to the attractions to be offered. On these trips, too, the line caters to passenger comfort.

These illustrations are cited as ways in which railroads can acquire good will. Many similar devices might be tried. Some of the lines that fret most about loss of passengers ought to take a closer look at what is being done elsewhere.

A New Twist

It is generally assumed that the Civil Liberties Union exists to protect the constitutional rights of American citizens from the tyranny of officialdom and there is plenty of that. In fact, the Civil Liberties Union might look into the prosecution of cases by rumor and innuendo until the atmosphere of guilt is established where there is no evidence of guilt. However, I have before me a letter addressed to Representative Don L. Short in the course of which he is taken to task by Richard Humphreys, Chairman of the Milwaukee unit of the Civil Liberties Union, for the following reason:

Humphreys argues thus:

"No matter of conscience was involved in this case other than the union member's unwillingness to pay a fine for failure to attend the required number of union meetings. As far as this union member was concerned the meetings could have been held any day of the week and she still could have complained about paying the fine."

"The issue of church attendance came up after the matter had been settled and then only when a reporter of dubious credibility decided that injection of this issue would add a 'human interest' twist to the story."

If the member was unwilling to pay the union imposed fine, this was strictly a matter between the union and its member. Do our courts exist to enforce the decisions of private organizations? Humphreys' explanation seems to me specious. How can he possibly know what is in the heart and mind of another person? How does he know that the person in question does not prefer to go to church on Sunday rather than to a union meeting?

I have carefully read the correspondence between Congressman Short and Richard Humphreys and wonder precisely what business it is of the Civil Liberties Union unless it were to investigate why a public court upheld a union fine. That could be the legal arm of the union.

The Pennsylvania Story

War II's End Boom To State

By Mason Denison
(EDITOR'S NOTE: Much has been said; much has been written — and unquestionably as the current gubernatorial campaign progresses, much more will be in the offing on the controversial subject of where Pennsylvania stands with its billion dollar annual budgets and its so-called "business climate.")

What's the background and what's ahead on the "business climate" front in the Keystone State — to which employment and unemployment are so closely tied — and where do Pennsylvania taxpayers stand? Perhaps no one is more admirably equipped to answer these questions than careerman and former Pennsylvania Economic League specialist David R. Baldwin, currently Pennsylvania Budget Secretary. The 1961-62 fiscal year ended June 30. We've asked budgetman Baldwin to give us the answers in this three-part series. — MWD)

(First Of Three Parts)
By David R. Baldwin
Pennsylvania Budget Secretary
Harrisburg — When World War II ended in 1946, most state — including Pennsylvania — found themselves in a remarkable fiscal situation. Because of the limitations which were placed on state governmental activities during the war, together with the fact that high employment had reduced public assistance requirements to a minimum, the states found themselves with substantial surpluses. At no time, however, had the public demand for more and improved services diminished and these demands began to be felt with renewed vigor upon the cessation of hostilities.

In response to this demand Pennsylvania, like her sister states, embarked on a series of programs which, with the exception of only one fiscal period from 1947 to 1959 resulting in each biennium, more money than it collected in revenues.

This spending pattern, however, resulted only in what may be termed "operational deficits" up until 1949-51. Because of the wartime accumulated surplus, each biennium finished with a surplus, reduced in amount from the surplus with which it started by the amount by which expenditures exceeded revenues during the biennium.

The net result of these practices could be termed an "operational deficit" but an "absolute surplus."

At the end of the 1949-51 biennium, this happy state of affairs changed drastically. While the level of demand for public services did not diminish, in fact it increased, the accumulated surplus disappeared, and Pennsylvania found itself with an absolute deficit for the first time since the second World War.

Obviously this condition was brought exclusively as a result of the financial operations of the administration during which it occurred. The pattern had been set during the past administrations which had been lucky enough to have had the accumulated surplus to cover it.

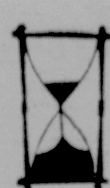

From 1951 through the 1957-58 biennium, the state experienced an increase in its "absolute" deficit which reflected a continuation of "operating deficits" and on May 31, 1959 (the end of the biennium) the accumulated deficit stood at $141,947,990.

However, at that point a dramatic reversal took place. During the 1959-61 biennium, the state accomplished an "operational" surplus of $108,720,129 which had the result of reducing the absolute accumulated deficit to $33,227,861 by May 30 of 1961.

During the fiscal period 1961-62, the "operating" surplus amounted to $49,926,571. Thus, the state commenced the 1962-63 fiscal year with an accumulated surplus of $15.6 million and a budget which is both balanced and realistic.

In analyzing the financial operations of the state since World War II, it is, of course, too simple and unrealistic to assign the reason for the deficits which had accumulated up to 1959 all to one factor. Obviously pressures by the public both organized and unorganized to increase and expand state services and programs were undeniable. Moreover, no reasonable person can blanket these demands with the cloak of unnecessary spending. No social organism whether it be a private business or the State Government can hope to stand still in time; it can only progress or regress.

Try and Stop Me

A motorcycle cop stopped a driver who was tooling up the West Side Drive of Manhattan at breakneck speed, and gave him a ticket. "I clocked you doing 75 miles an hour," said the cop grimly. The driver nodded cheerfully, then asked, "Couldn't you make it 90 an hour, officer? I'm trying to sell this car."

Wayne Howell and Charlie Rice have been playing a new game called "Improbable Authors" that may intrigue intellectual Try - and - Stop - Me readers. You'll get the idea from the following samples:

War and Peace by Peewee Reese; Finnegan's Wake by Veronica Lake; Ivanhoe by Brigitte Bardot; Charles's Aunt by Immanuel Kant; High Tor by Toots Shor; Decline and Fall by Lucille Ball; Peyton Place by Princess Grace; The Peppermint Twist by Franz Liszt; and The Polka-Dot Bikini by G. Puccini.

George Burns acknowledged a debt of gratitude to one loyal fan named Feldman who came to see his act 37 times in succession. Every evening at eight, Feldman's five sons deposited him in a seat in the orchestra, and every night at eleven one of the sons returned to take him home.

"You may ask," continues Burns, "why I took five sons to bring the old gentleman to the theater and only one son to take him home. The answer is that Feldman fought like a steer."

The Allen-Scott Report

Prosecutions Lag

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington — If Attorney General Robert Kennedy's ears are burning, there is very good reason for that.

Certain congressional leaders are letting it be known they think he is pulling his punches when it comes to vigorously enforcing the anti-trust laws. They are saying his Republican predecessor made a much better showing.

These congressional critics have definitely ascertained that more than a dozen major anti-trust prosecutions have been stalled for months on the 36-year-old Attorney General's desk. They are all ready to be filed in court, and need only his authorization for the Anti-Trust Division to proceed. But this approval has not been forthcoming.

Two of these big cases involve General Motors and American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Most of these cases were initiated by Robert Bicks, crusading young head of the Anti-Trust Division in the Eisenhower Administration. Under him, considerable work was done particularly on the General Motors case.

Primary purpose of this action is to break up GM's complex of passenger car divisions; that is, compel the corporation to divest itself of all but one of these divisions.

Bicks' time-table called for this far-reaching prosecution to be filed by February of this year.

The Anti-Trust Division had the case ready by that date, with a recommendation that it be instituted forthwith. But for reasons known only to the Attorney General, he has sat on it ever since.

The critical congressional leaders are fully aware of this. They are also well informed about the other cases that have long been hanging fire under Kennedy.

Among these increasingly restive congressional critics are three militant trust-busters — Senator Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., chairman of an anti-monopoly investigating committee; Representative Emmanuel Celler, D-N.Y., head of a similar committee as well as chairman of the House Judiciary Committee which has jurisdiction over the Justice Department; and Representative John Rooney, D-N.Y., head of the House Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the Department's budget.

ON THE GRIDDLE — Representative Rooney bluntly raised this issue with Assistant Attorney General Lee Loevinger, head of the Anti-Trust Division, when he appeared before the Appropriations Subcommittee on funds for his agency.

Citing detailed figures, Rooney stated they showed a far better Republican anti-trust record than Democratic.

The veteran Brooklyn legislator made it pointedly clear he thinks the Justice Department is now dragging its feet on vigorous anti-trust enforcement and should bestir itself. He left no doubt as to the purpose of his sharp prodding.

"How do you explain the difference between the record of what was done under Bicks and what has happened since then?" demanded Rooney. "Under him, in that fiscal year, 36 anti-trust cases were won. In a virtually similar period, you have won only two cases."

"We have been settling more cases by consent decree," contended Loevinger. "I call your attention to the very significant fact that we have collected $3 million in fines."

"I'm speaking about criminal cases," snapped Rooney.

"Of Bicks' 36 criminal cases," retorted Loevinger, "19 were the Philadelphia electrical price-fixing cases."

"What of it," declared Rooney. "Regardless of what cases they were, they were anti-trust cases that the government won. Bicks did extremely well with them, and you are now taking credit for the fines that were collected as the result of what he did. He started these cases and won them in court before you people got in on the act."

"We have not been idle, asserted Loevinger, one-time law partner of Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman and member of the Minnesota Supreme Court.

"If you will look at our own figures," continued Rooney, "you will see that under Bicks there were 36 major anti-trust prosecutions as compared to two in a similar period in this Administration. Isn't that a pretty good indication that there was much more anti-trust activity in the previous Administration than in this one?"

"I would say it means we have not gotten as many cases to a decision," argued Loevinger. "We have a number of cases in the investigation stage. It takes time to file and prosecute them."

"Well, I hope the record shows better results in the future than it does so far," said Rooney dryly.

"I'm confident it will," insisted Loevinger. "As our investigations are completed, we will be filing a number of major cases. I can assure you there will be no lag on that."

"That remains to be seen," said Rooney skeptically. "So far, the record isn't very promising."

UNEXPECTED TRIBUTES — Senator John Stennis, D-Miss., received a rare tribute from a western colleague for his handling of the explosive probe of alleged censorship of military officers, Senator Clair Engle, D-Calif., who differs sharply with Stennis on many issues, praised him highly for his "skill and art in directing the contentious issue before his committee." Said Engle, "Under a lesser man this investigation might have deteriorated into a jungle of nerves and name-calling. But throughout the hearings, under circumstances that would try most men, Senator Stennis maintained a gentle and kindly spirit and a fair and reasonable hand."

... Edward R. Murrow, head of the U.S. Information Agency, was lauded by an unexpected source, Senator Stephen Young, D-O., who has sharply criticized the agency, commended its accomplishments under Murrow. Declared Young, "U.S. IA has become one of the ten key agencies in our cold war effort. Murrow has inspired it with a new sense of purpose and direction. He has eliminated incompetent personnel, and greatly enhanced the morale of those who work with him."

Inside You And Yours

Is Osteomyelitis Curable?

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.
DEAR DOCTOR: After an auto accident, our son developed osteomyelitis in one leg. Will it drain all his life or is there hope?

Mrs. N. L. (Conn.)

Dear Mrs. L.: Definitely hope! Modern surgery and miracle drugs can control most bone infection — osteomyelitis.

Osteomyelitis begins when germs settle on a jagged broken bone poking through the skin or when some injury lowers resistance and germs in your circulation find a bony soft spot.

Germs seep into your system from boils, sore throats, abscessed teeth and so on. Often you can't find the port of entry.

The germs are funneled into rich marrow. A growing abscess eats away bone and eventually breaks through.

Smoldering Infection

Soon new bone forms — but with openings through which infected bony fragments drain. Now osteomyelitis becomes a smoldering infection which flares up whenever drainage stops.

Osteomyelitis strikes children with fierce pain and tenderness. You can barely move the arm or leg. It swells and may resemble an ordinary sprain or break.

In babies, osteomyelitis attacks with the fury of a life-threatening infection. Fever sky-rockets and baby grows weak. Stomach and intestines may erupt.

Osteomyelitis sneaks up on adults like a smoldering infection that gradually eats away strength. Pain and swelling come later.

X-rays don't help much. Osteomyelitis doesn't show up until it's too late to head off a bony abscess.

If the germs are found in the circulation or infected drainage, tests can pinpoint the best germ-killer. Usually it's penicillin.

You need giant doses until the temperature's normal for a whole week. Don't expect a normal temperature the day after treatment begins. Osteomyelitis heals slowly.

No miracle drug can work when dead infected bone remains. The surgeon has to dig out every tiny fragment to insure healing. Then drainage stops and new bone strengthens.

And hopes and prayers are answered as osteomyelitis fades into memory!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

Of taking minute vacations of slowing down to look at a flower: to chat with an old friend or make a new one; to pat a stray dog; to watch a spider build a web; to smile at a child; or to read a few lines from a good book.

Remind me each day That the race is not always to the swift; That there is more to life than increasing its speed.

Let me look upward Into the branches of the towering oak And know that it grew great and strong Because it grew slowly and well.

Slow me down, Lord, And inspire me to send my roots deep Into the soil of life's enduring values That I may grow toward the stars Of my greater destiny."

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

For once my oft-repeated desire to be triplets, or at the very least twins, was almost realized. As a lady of leisure, there was nothing to beat a misty-moisty morning when cloudy was the weather for sleeping late. Well, 10 a.m. isn't really late but it's hours later than the usual 6 a.m. noisy sunrise comes along with all those "birdies with the yellow bill" perched upon my window sill.

Besides, Margie Hermann's 11 a.m. wedding was something to get up for, and if you think the rain mattered you didn't realize that she'd chosen a nice sunny yellow for her bridesmaids so they sort of furnished their own sunshine. It was a real happy wedding.

And so was Susan Flory's in the afternoon. Speaking of twins, Susan was the last of two sets of twins, but not by much — and by this time Mother Ella ought to have enough MOB dresses to see her through practically any social occasion for years to come.

But that still left the late afternoon for some really interesting bridge at which the younger generation whopped their elders — but not by so much as to be humiliating.

And anyway, we forgot all about that in our first visit to the Cherry Lane Playhouse which more than lived up to all the expectations aroused by the enthusiasts. Part of their enthusiasm, I'm sure, is because they sort of feel like Columbus to have discovered it at all. In one respect the letters were wrong, however. Most of them bemoaned the small size of the crowd but there was a really respectable audience there Saturday night so apparently it is catching on.

Among them were the Ken Bartholme, back for a repeat performance, this time with both their sons and daughters-in-law, which makes a clique I wouldn't mind having in my corner for any event.

And Sunday, of course, was the reception for Merle and Frances Ostrom both slimmer and younger than eve rand standing up happily to a rigorous round of visits in the North following their big 50th wedding anniversary in Florida. They might not realize it but their coming also provided a big treat for the home folks, too, in bringing together a lot of my favorite people I haven't seen for ages.

If I were triplets, I'd have stayed later everywhere but I doubt if I could have enjoyed it all more. And the only person I might have changed places with was akthryn Wellington, off in an aura of excitement to see her first grandchild who had the sense to be born on the first day of Grandfather John's vacation.

Miss Margaret L. Hermanns Bride At St. Matthew's

Miss Margaret Louise Hermanns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hermanns, Sr. of 1141 North Fifth St., Stroudsburg, was married on Saturday at 11 a.m. at a nuptial mass at St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church, East Stroudsburg, to James J. Donovan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Donovan of Dorchester, Mass.

Rev. Harold T. Hermanns of Rahway, N. J., a cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony. Numa Snyder played organ selections before the ceremony and also was accompanist for the soloist, Miss Theresa Theodore of Wilmington, Del. Her solos included "Pans Angelicus", "Jesus Thou Art Coming", "On This Day" and "Mother of Christ".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight silk organza over taffeta with appliques of alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. It was fashioned with a scoop neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. The flowing back was accentuated by tucked tiers which drifted into a chapel train. Her headpiece was a pearl crown with an illusion veil. She carried a white missel covered by white roses.

Miss Elizabeth Hoke of Pottsville was her maid of honor. She wore a sheath dress of hyacinth silk organza with a softly gathered overskirt. Her headpiece was a matching double bow with a scalloped veil.

The bridesmaids were Miss Gail McDowell and Miss Judith Powell, both of Stroudsburg, and Miss Janet Schick of Levittown. The bridesmaids were similarly attired in gowns of maise silk organza with floating overskirts and matching bows. They all carried loose colonial bouquets of white daisies.

Thomas Donovan served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Edwin Hermanns Jr., brother of the bride; John Langdon, Walter Taylor, Kevin Griffin, Gerald Duffy, William Kelleher and Joseph Owens, all of Brookline, Mass.

The bride's mother wore a dress of raspberry silk organza with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. The bridegroom's mother wore a turquoise dress with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Mountain-Manor Inn with the long bridal table set in front of an archway of streamers and bells. Garlands of greens decorated the front of the table. The four-tiered wedding cake had tiers separated by pillars.

Now on a wedding trip to New Hampshire, the bride's traveling costume was a mustard suit with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The bride, a graduate of Stroud Union High School and Marywood College, is teaching at Arthur L. Johnson High School in Clark, N. J. Her husband is attending Lincoln Institute. They will reside in Linden, N. J.

Pocono Council GOP President Named To Post

Mrs. Mervin F. Fontanella, president of the Pocono Mountain Council of Republican Women has been named campaign chairman for Monroe County by Mrs. Ralph Morgan, Kingston, area campaign chairman of Carbon, Luzerne and Monroe Counties.

Miss Sara Ann Stauffer is the chairman of the campaign committee of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women.

Mrs. Fontanella will select assistants from the three active Councils in the county: Monroe County Council, Barrett Council and the Pocono Mountain Council of Republican Women. She will call a meeting of the entire committee for mid-August.

State recognition was given Mrs. Fontanella in another role, when Mrs. Irvin R. MacElwee, state president, sent to all the council presidents in the state copies of a letter which Mrs. Fontanella had written to Pocono Mountain Council presidents when she assumed office.

The letter which began: "Let's pretend I am not your president. Let's pretend that I am a candidate for the presidency —" lists the ten points of a platform for president in the form of ten resolutions, checking off those points which had already been accomplished.

Miss Susan Ann Flory, Lt. Earl Ervey Married In E. S. Presbyterian Church

Miss Susan Ann Flory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse R. S. Flory, was married at 2 p.m. on Saturday in the Presbyterian Church, East Stroudsburg, to Lt. Earl Franklin Ervey, USA.

Lt. Ervey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Ervey of Bridge St., Stroudsburg.

Rev. Frank Wingerter performed the ceremony against the background of altar vases of white flowers. Musical background was provided by Louis Steen, soloist, who sang "Because", "The Greatest of These is Love" and "The Wedding Prayer", accompanied by Ernest Michelfelder, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza over taffeta. Alencon lace, re-embroidered and set with seed pearls, trimmed the neckline, and bodice and was applied in sprays on the skirt. Two wide stripes of the lace edged the sides of the chapel train. A silk organza rose tipped with seed pearls held her fingertip veil of French illusion. She carried a lace covered Bible with pink sweetheart roses and white stephanotis.

Miss Constance Staples of East Stroudsburg was maid of honor. She wore a street-length dress of pink silk organza with French lace on the bodice and a bustle in back of the skirt. A pink silk organza rose dotted with pearls formed her head-piece and she carried a cascade bouquet of white Shasta daisy mums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Bard, East Stroudsburg; Miss Ruth Ervey, sister of the groom, Stroudsburg; Miss Linda Nittel, East Stroudsburg; and Marie Schrag, cousin of the bride, Philadelphia.

They wore dresses in the same style as the maid of honor in aqua silk organza with matching head-pieces and flowers.

Robert Kassner, East Stroudsburg, was best man. Ushers were Earl Budge, Saylorsburg; Claus Graef, Stroudsburg; Robert Pipher, cousin of the bridegroom. Stroudsburg; and Fred Rinker, Scotia.

The bride's mother wore a sheath dress of blue silk alpaca with matching accessories and a corsage of white flowers. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of yellow chiffon over yellow figured taffeta with a corsage of yellow flowers.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 275 guests was held in the social rooms of the church.

Leaving for their wedding trip to Lake George, N.Y., the bride wore a blue linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

The bride, a graduate of East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School, is a student at East Stroudsburg State College.

Lt. Ervey was graduated from Stroudsburg High School and from The Pennsylvania State University where he was commissioned a lieutenant in the United States Army.

Scott To Speak At Republican Picnic Here

Senator William Z. Scott will be the speaker at the picnic meeting of the Monroe County Council of Republican Women to be held Wednesday night at 6:30 at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Minnick on the Delaware at Minisink Hills.

Sen. Scott is a candidate for re-election to the State Senate and will spearhead the other Republican candidates invited to speak at the picnic which is open to all those interested.

Members are asked to bring a covered dish, a card table and table service.

The Baby's Named!

David Wellington Talmage, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Talmage of 806 Cricket Ave., Ardmore, announce the birth of their first child, a son, on Aug. 3 at 10:05 a.m. in the Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia. He weighed 7 pounds 13 ounces and was 20½ inches long. He has been named David Wellington.

Mrs. Talmage is the former Barbara Wellington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wellington of Scott St., Stroudsburg. The Wellingtons left yesterday to spend three weeks in Ardmore, welcoming their first grandchild.

No baked or boiled ham on hand to add to that chef's salad? Cut slices of bologna or salami into thin strips and use instead of the ham. But do have Swiss cheese ready to go in — it's a "must" for a real chef's salad.

Attractive for that buffet: mound potato salad on a platter; surround with the inner curly yellow leaves of chicory, arrange thin rings of red and green pepper, alternating the colors, over the potatoes.

Round-Up Highlights Are Recalled By Local Scout

By Gail Smith
Round-up Reporter
Special to The Daily Record

Button Bay, Vt. — The Girl Scouts arrived at the national encampment, Button Bay) on 11 special trains, 79 special buses and 37 private cars. The city of 6,000 tents sprang up on what was once an extensive field.

The campers were placed in troops of four patrols, each from a different area. Fifty of the 150 International Girl Guides had arrived in the United States three or four weeks prior to the Round-up. They traveled in pairs to different sections of the country where they joined patrols of six American Girls and came to the Round-up with them.

At camp, the day began at 7 a.m. each morning. Breakfast was served at 8. With each girl taking a turn as cook, all the meals, including evening snacks were prepared within the individual patrols over charcoal.

The breakfast menus consisted of fruit juice and milk, cereals, eggs, pancakes, French toast, doughnuts and coffee cake. Lunch, which was served at noon, consisted of soups, salads and sandwiches. Dinner, served at 6 p.m., included meat, vegetables, salads, desserts and milk.

During the round-up a total of 30,600 were served daily and a total of 432,400 during the whole encampment. A total of 106,962 eggs, 23 tons of meat, 5,000 chickens, 129,668 quarts of milk and 21,582 loaves of bread were consumed.

After breakfast there were many things to do. Besides meetings for correspondents and commentators, there were small articles to swap, swimming in Lake Champlain, photographs to take; demonstrations to participate in or watch; painting, sketching, writing, interviewing International girls, square dancing, religious services, forums, nature hikes and arena events.

Many of these were available from morning until night. At night there were patrol activities and sectional gatherings. All activities were over at 10 p.m. and all lights out at 10:30.

A part of every girl's schedule was the flag raising. A total of 109 state and International flags were raised each morning in the Avenue of Flags. This avenue was a double row of flags branching apart to form a fork at one end. It was inspirational and unforgettable to see this event.

There were more than 70 married couples taking part in the round-up. The women worked as nurses, leaders, hostesses, International consultants, camp directors, administrative secretaries, transportation managers and mail and food sorters. The men served as consultants, health superintendents, commissary managers, drivers, warehousemen, cashiers and maintenance men.

These are just a few of the many wonderful things that helped to make this round-up so successful.

When you prepare a soft custard sauce with egg yolks, you can beat the egg whites to the soft peak stage and fold them into the cold sauce; do this just before serving. In summer, the custard is delightful over sliced peaches or blueberries or a combination of the two fruits.

Sears Offers You Helpful Suggestions On Refrigerators

Undersize Water Heater Can Be A Costly Buy

ANY way you look at it, a "bargain" undersize water heater is a bad buy. And the right size for the family next door may not be at all right for your family.

An undersize water heater is definitely poor economy. Paying ten or twenty dollars less for a heater that "probably will do the job," says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, will cost you much more than that in the long run. Not only will it not provide all the hot water your family wants when it is most needed, but the heater will rapidly wear out with each day of this punishment to its designed operation.

Taken into account are: number of family members, expected family growth, number and kind of water-using appliances the family has or expects to have, and the number of bathrooms and powder rooms in the home.

Also to be considered by you and the contractor in selecting the proper water heater is that it will be utilized more in summer than winter due to increased frequency of baths and showers, more washing of clothes, and additional

Exchange Plan Offered By Cyphers

HOMEMAKERS who have a kitchen sink garbage disposal will find the plan instituted by the General Electric appliance people a most attractive idea. The company and Cyphers Electric of Bartonsville has an exchange plan which will allow a homeowner to exchange his present disposal (regardless of its make), for brand new G-E Disposal at a very attractive savings.

This same disposal exchange plan has just recently been broadened to take-in dishwashers, too! G-E's famed Mobile Maid and Undercounter models may be purchased on an exchange plan that will save you many dollars.

When Purchasing A New Model

WITH refrigerator manufacturers introducing scores of new models and cabinet styles each year, shopping for this important home appliance has become almost as complicated as selecting the family automobile.

As a guide to help you choose the right model for your family, here are a few points to keep in mind when shopping for your new refrigerator:

A number of factors will dictate your size needs, the most important being the number of people your refrigerator must serve, how much entertaining you do, and how often you market.

It is estimated that a family of two will need a minimum of ten cubic feet of refrigeration, with at least one cubic foot for each additional family member. One expert suggests that if you plan on entertaining, two cubic feet should be added to meet this need. And if your trips to the local grocery or supermarket are infrequent, refrigeration requirements will be even greater.

Since 75 per cent of the food consumed by the average family goes through the refrigerator, it is important for the homeowner to make the most of the refrigeration space available.

During the past few years manufacturers have done a great deal to help the homeowner obtain the most refrigeration in the least possible space.

One of the newest innovations in this space problem of the space age is called "SPACEMAKER Interiors". This feature, part of the 1962 Sears Coldspot line of refrigerators, is a flexible shelving arrangement which allows the homeowner to quickly adjust shelves, in any of more than 1,000 possible arrangements.

More refrigeration in less floor and wall space has also been accomplished through the use of "thinwall" construction. A 1962 Coldspot 16 cubic foot refrigerator, for example, has the same outside dimensions of 13.5 cubic feet models of previous years.

This new thinwall construction principle, which reduces the thickness of the wall is just as efficient in its insulating and cold-retaining properties as the old, thicker construction, laboratory tests show.

The 1962 Coldspot line of refrigerators also include the frostless feature, a much-wanted improvement in home refrigeration that puts an end to ice cube trays "freezing in", and efficiency-debroying frost formation on the inside. The chore of defrosting has now been eliminated with this frostless improvement besides more uniform temperatures and rapid recovery of temperature after door opening.

Other new Coldspot advances for 1962 include a quieter refrigeration system to cut down the noise level and increased capacity inner door panels.

The complete line of Coldspot refrigerators is available exclusively at Sears, Roebuck and Co., Main Street, Stroudsburg. Dial 421-1400.

YOU'LL HAVE NO TROUBLE getting that big turkey or watermelon to fit in this refrigerator. Adjustable "Spacemaker" shelves in this 1962 Coldspot permit maximum use of available cooling space, and recessed storage area in the door provides room for dozens of cans and bottles. Designed for families who own a freezer, this refrigerator has a small freezing compartment for ice cubes and three crisper trays for meat and vegetables. Coldspot refrigerators are available at Sears, Roebuck and Co., Main Street, Stroudsburg.

TO BE SEEN HERE—The Keystoneers, representing American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts in Milton, will be among the six corps competing in the second annual Music in Motion to be held Saturday, Aug. 18, in East Stroudsburg Memorial Stadium. The corps was founded in 1946 as a parade unit, winning more than 120 first prizes until 1952, when it began field competition. The group won American Legion State Class B titles in 1953 and 1954, state VFW Open Class championships in 1957, 1958 and 1959 and national VFW Open Class titles in 1957 and 1958. The program is sponsored by the Keystone Grenadiers, representing Thomas P. Lambert Post 2540, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and George N. Kemp Post 346, American Legion.

Wayne Co. Fair To Mark 100th Opening August 12

HONESDALE — The stage is set for the 100th annual opening of The Wayne County Fair, one of the oldest events of its type in the region, which begins Aug. 12.

Opening day has been set for next Sunday when representatives of major religious denominations will participate in an inspirational hour in front of the Fairgrounds grandstand.

This year's Fair program includes three afternoons of top-flight harness racing, three auto thrill shows, two horse shows and a personal appearance of Les Paul and Mary Ford, popular stars of stage, screen, radio, television and records.

In keeping with the centennial theme, the program committee has also scheduled horse pulling contests, a square dance competition, greased-pig catching contest and an old-timers parade.

"We're trying to mix the old with the new," said Dr. W. J. Perkins, Fair president. "The program includes many of the things which were on the schedule for the original Fair in 1862. It also includes many of the innovations which have come to light since that time."

Honesdale area men are co-operating with the celebration by growing beards and operating a kangaroo court before which clean-shaven men are brought to justice.

Historical Pageant
One of the highlights of the week-long celebration will be an historical pageant written and produced by a committee headed by Wayne County Judge James Ruthertford.

Among those featured in the cast will be Jeanne Madden Martin, Scranton, former Broadway and Hollywood star.

The inspirational hour has been scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

Photographer Drowns In River

BEAVER, Pa. (AP) — Russell T. Morley, 45, chief photographer for the Beaver County Times, drowned Saturday in the Allegheny River.

Dr. John Colavincenzo, Beaver County Coroner, said Morley apparently slipped and fell into the stream while cleaning his 27-foot cruiser at a dock in Beaver in the morning.

He said Morley wasn't reported missing until several hours later. A scuba diver recovered the body early Sunday.

Colavincenzo listed the cause of death as drowning.

Police Chiefs To Convene

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The 49th annual convention of the Pennsylvania Chiefs of Police Association opens Monday with more than 500 law enforcement officers expected to attend.

Mayor Joseph M. Barr of Pittsburgh and Francis J. Shafer, association president, will address the opening session.

Gov. Lawrence will deliver the main address at the convention's concluding banquet Wednesday night.

'Kiss And Tell' Begins Tuesday Night At Bushkill

THE Bushkill Playhouse will ring up the curtain on their production of the comedy hit called "Kiss And Tell" on Tuesday evening, August 7, at the Bushkill Playhouse. This popular farce by F. Hugh Herbert which regaled Broadway audiences for over two years, will be presented here for 6 performances through Sunday, August 12.

As Corliss Archer, the irresponsible junior miss whose excursions into plain and fancy mischief-making provide most of the comic complications in "Kiss and Tell," Nancy Davidson will be seen in this production as Corliss Archer. This is the role which was acted on the New York Stage by Joan Caulfield and in the movie version of the comedy by Shirley Temple.

As Dexter, Corliss' fellow-conspirator in promoting pandemonium in the small town in which the comedy is set, Jack Degnan will be seen. Cathie Ghem will play the role of Mildred Pringle, Corliss' friend who innocently adds to the comic confusions simply by keeping her secret marriage to Corliss' brother, Lennox, to be played by George Walden.

Though the adolescent Archers and Pringles are obviously the best of friends, the family heads of the respective families have less amiable relations with one another.

Steven Weitzman will be seen as Mildred's spying brother Raymond, Ralph Litts will play an Army private who is one of the young men in Corliss' young life, and other roles have been assigned to Johnnie Gruver, Rhoda Weitzman and Walter H. Williams.

Sen. Clark Praises Rails For Drought Cooperation

SENATOR Joseph S. Clark (D. Pa.) today commended Eastern Railroads on their action in reducing freight rates on hay shipments into 51 Pennsylvania drought stricken counties. Senator Clark said, "It is my understanding that this is the first such action taken by railroads east of the Mississippi and I know farmers suffering the drought disaster will be grateful by this recognition of their plight."

The rate reduction, which amounts to a 25 percent cut, becomes effective August 4 and will be a substantial help to farmers whose hay requirements now must be met by shipments from other areas. The action was taken under Drought Order No. 60 issued July 25, 1962, by the Interstate Commerce Commission in response to requests from the Secretary of Agriculture, Senator Clark, and others.

Fifty-one Pennsylvania counties have now been declared disaster areas and eligible for program designed to afford relief. Farmers are now permitted to graze and harvest acres that are in the soil bank or that have been diverted from grain production. This authorization is only effective until August 31, but Senator Clark has already asked the Secretary of Agriculture to extend the deadline until November 1. Also, an emergency loan program has been initiated by the Farmers Home Administration. These low-interest loans are designed to help farmers secure funds when needs cannot be met by local credit sources.

Senator Clark added, "I continue to keep in close touch with developments and will do everything possible to secure needed help until normalcy returns."

Bethlehem Youth Attending Council As Area Delegate

STERLING Fabian, Bethlehem, R. 2, Pa., has been selected to attend the 1962 American Institute of Cooperation to be held at Ohio State University, August 5 to 9. According to George M. Fowler, secretary of the Northampton-Monroe cooperative Youth council he will be attending as part of a delegation of 11 teen-age youth from Pennsylvania.

Some 4000 agricultural leaders including 1000 youth from all 50 states, Puerto Rico and Canada will attend their three day educational institute.

More than 200 top speakers including D. W. Brooks, General Manager, The Cotton Producers Association, Atlanta, Georgia, and Murray D. Lincoln, President Nationwide Insurance, Columbus, Ohio will highlight the conference. The youth attending the conference were selected on a competitive basis according to their knowledge of cooperatives, their experience and background.

The purpose of the American Institute of Cooperation is to encourage teaching and conducting research in the science of cooperation which is one way of doing business under our democratic, competitive private enterprise system.

tem. The Institute was organized as a university and incorporated in the District of Columbia in 1925. It is often referred to as "a university without a campus".

West End, Lakers, Bowies, A's Gain Playoff Berths After Wins

THE four teams which will compete in the Pocono Mountain League playoffs were determined yesterday but the hectic baseball season is far from over as the schedule nears the finish line.

All first division teams displayed their dominant power and won in convincing manners. The top four teams — West End, Saylorsburg, Bowmanstown and Stroudsburg — assured themselves of a place in the playoffs.

Four Eliminated
The front runners knocked off any chances Tannersville, Bushkill, Barrett or Readers had of gaining the post-season competition.

West End defeated Tannersville, 10-1, to remain tied with Saylorsburg for first place as the Lakers rapped Bushkill 18-0. Bowmanstown held on to third place with a 9-2 triumph over Barrett and Stroudsburg clipped Readers without too much difficulty, 12-1.

With only four games remaining, the first-place tie breaker will come next week when Saylorsburg visits West End in the top game of the day — if not the season.

Bowmanstown, only two games off the pace, zipped Barrett 9-2 as Darrell Bowman proved tough when it counted. He allowed 11 hits in gaining his 7th victory against 1 defeat. Barrett garnered the hits but failed to push across the runs when needed.

The Bowies took advantage of C. Harrison, who was charged with the loss and Carl Motts for 10 safeties. They had an 8-0 lead before the Barrett boys broke the ice.

Gain 18 Hits
West End rapped out 18 hits (along with five walks) to stroll to their 10-1 win over Tannersville. A run in the seventh broke the shut-out for the Villagers but by that time, the Enders had a 10-0 margin.

Metzgar got credit for the victory; Starnier took the defeat.

Metzgar hurled a 4-hitter. Dean Lakatos, Denny Lakatos and Answail each got three hits for West End.

Stroudsburg's A's, behind the nifty pitching of Doug Price, rolled on 13 hits to their 12-1 conquest. Price hurled steady ball as he set down the Readers crew on six safeties.

J. Sommers blasted a homer for winners as John Viechnick collected 4-hits in five trips and Bob Renchler registered three hits in five times at bat. Renchler also had four RBI's.

Saylorsburg, unleashing probably its biggest barrage of the season, held its first-place tie as it banged out 22 hits and collected 18 runs.

Break Tight Game
The Lakers broke a tight ball game wide open in the third when four runs were scored. Five more in the fourth and Saylorsburg moved too far ahead of Bushkill. While his teammates were limbering up for next week's affair, Dick Serfass held the Bushkillmen to two hits. It was his seventh victory in eight games.

Bob Goalby Is Victor After 7 Holes

Art Wall Loses In Playoff Claim Victories

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Bob Goalby of Perito Bay, Fla., fought an uphill battle Sunday and captured the Insurance City Open Golf Tournament on the seventh extra hole in a sudden-death playoff with Art Wall Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa.

Goalby clinched the top prize of $5,300 with a 6-inch putt for a birdie just before dusk. Wall won $3,400 for second place.

They finished the regulation 72 holes in 271, 13-under par, after Wall missed an 18-inch putt that would have given him the victory on the last hole.

It was the third playoff in a row at the par-71 Wethersfield Country Club. Billy Maxwell won it last year at the same hole and Arnold Palmer in 1960 on the 75th hole.

Capitalizing on Wall's ill luck, Goalby sank a seven-foot pressure putt on the third extra hole and stayed alive. He finally won with a birdie when Wall was unable to sink a five-footer on the 79th.

Goalby, runnerup by a stroke to Gary Player in the recent national PGA tournament, shot rounds of 69-69-66-67, while Wall posted rounds of 65-70-66-70.

Julius Boros and Jerry Steel-smith tied for third with 272, sharing $4,100.

Reliever Juan Pizarro singled with two out and continued to second base when centerfielder Jack Reed let the ball roll through his legs. Hershberger then lined a single off Jim Coates, ending the game.

In the ninth, Sherm Lollar led off with a double for Chicago but the Sox could not get the winning run across. In the 11th, the Yankees had runners on first and third with none out on singles by Yogi Berra and John Blanchard but Turk Lown worked his way out of the jam.

Plane Found Passengers Reported OK

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The Area Control Office said Saturday it was told that rescue teams have found a missing Nepali airliner in the Himalayan foothills of southwest Nepal near the Indian border.

The control office said the 10 persons aboard, including two American aid officials, were reported safe.

There was no immediate confirmation from any other available source.

The Americans aboard were Sidney B. Jacques, 51, and Oscar Curtis Holder, 50, both U.S. foreign aid inspectors from Washington, D.C.

Also among the passengers were a Canadian woman, Miss C. J. Grindley of Toronto, and Nepal's ambassador to India, Narapatrap Thapa, 35.

The Area Control Office said: "The magistrate of the Bahrach district of (India's) Uttar Pradesh State has been told by the chief executive officer at Bardia village that the plane was located in a dry tank—reservoir—five miles north of Bardia."

"He also was informed that all those aboard were safe and staying with the local Raja Harihar Singh of Panchal Sarai."

The control office said it had no other information regarding the plane or its occupants.

Bardia is about halfway on the 500-mile New Delhi-Katmandu air route the Dakota airliner was flying when it disappeared Wednesday afternoon.

Nepal's New Delhi Embassy said an Indian air force helicopter is being sent to Bardia to bring the six passengers and crew of four to New Delhi.

Water containing only a small percentage of potassium cyanide will dissolve silver and gold.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Monday, August 6, 1962
March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A strong Mars aspect encourages your interests now, so you will be expected to be better than par with such fine assistance. Work diligently for the rest of the year.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — There may be some dull moments you will have to keep up. Gain greater momentum through re-organized thinking and acting. In travel, using tools, be careful.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Consider this day's requirements. Where should you rectify, invigorate, or tone down? Important to think R.P.O.R.E. you act, and to include all factors in your considerations.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You should have new ambition and incentive now. An interesting business transaction could prove profitable. Personal relationships are under fine influences.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — There may be something about you that can cause worry or anxiety. Try not to yield to such stress. Take obstacles in stride and just do the best you can.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — An anxious and transitionful period projects from the inside out. You can get at the core of matters easily, bring about amendments, devise new means for advancement. Warm up to it.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Especially favored now. Advising, promoting, writing, a splendid day to proceed along cherished lines. Do not overtax your endurance, however.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — The pressure of military measures if you run into obstacles. Some tactics apply in some cases, not so in others. Mix the old with new adroitness. Don't worry over others' bungling. As long as you don't interfere with you.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Jupiter's favorable aspect encourages all worthwhile endeavors. Put forth best efforts now. You cannot do wrong with a song in your heart—let others hear it.

December 24 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Seek those elusive clues to higher achievement. You are in line for benefits, but must work for them. You can act effectively when you have the will.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Solutions won't come readily in certain matters, but don't become pessimistic. Your innate stick-to-itiveness will help you hurdle all obstacles.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Neptune very favorably aspects you. Take action according to pre-arranged plans. Only the foolhardy are on guesswork. You should accomplish BIG things now.

YOU BORN TODAY are a tower of strength and solidarity, leader, defender, artist and humorist. But lest you forget, you have some faults, too. You can be dominating, bullish, even stop talking and leave another to guess what has hurt you. This is in direct opposition to your many fine traits, so avoid these tendencies, and live the wonderful, interesting life you should, loving home, laughing daily with loved ones, making a success of work which can be anything from hard labor to writing poetry, for you have talent along many lines. Leo rules the heart; don't let it run wild. Birthdate of: Dan O'Connell, Irish statesman; Alfred Lord Tennyson, English poet; Stella Parsons, newspaper columnist.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

News Interpretation:

Dividing Wall In Berlin Heads For First Birthday

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

In a week, that monstrosity known as The Wall will be a year old. The barrier which cuts Berlin in half symbolized a divided world. It is looking more ominous every day.

In propaganda from the East there is a suggestion that Berlin is about to become the theater for a test of nerves between East and West. Daily, the Communist side complains about "systematic provocations" from the West and professes to see an increasingly dangerous situation developing.

Washington, eyeing the burgeoning crisis warily, takes comfort in the idea that Soviet President Khrushchev is not likely to plunge the world into war over Berlin, and is even less likely to give the Communist East Germans the power to do it.

Big Question
The big question is: How far does Khrushchev believe he can go in applying pressure? How determined does he think the West is?

Khrushchev has committed himself deeply. Almost four years ago he promised to drive the Western Allies out of Berlin within six months. He backed away before the deadline and appended no time limit to his later demands that the U.S., British and French troops get out.

But, for almost four years, the Soviet premier has had nothing to show the Communist world for his pains.

What can Khrushchev do? The propaganda hints at what is on his mind. The propaganda machine, like Khrushchev himself, points repeatedly to the settlement of the Laos crisis in Southeast Asia. That settlement—which contained little for the West to cheer about—involved supposedly equal government representation in Laos for Communist, pro-West and neutral elements.

Red propaganda concedes that tiny Laos bears little resemblance to Germany. But it insists that so far as the cold war is concerned, the only difference between the two crises is that there was civil war in Laos.

This suggests that there could conceivably be resort to guns over the Berlin question, and indeed the whole German question. Soviet propaganda tends to lump the questions of Berlin and divided Germany together.

The Kremlin pleads that what counts is not the pattern of the settlement but the approach to it. The West, it says, was reasonable in Laos. It can be so in Germany too, the argument goes, and end tension overnight simply by agreeing to withdraw troops from West Berlin.

Possibilities Listed
Khrushchev has been told firmly by the United States will not agree to that.

One gets the impression that the Kremlin plans soon to take the bull by the horns and sign a separate treaty with East Germany which, theoretically, would assign all Soviet obligations in Berlin to the East German regime. That would imply East German control over access to West Berlin.

The Kremlin might then permit matters to reach a fairly dangerous temperature in the heart of Europe until what it regarded as the psychological moment—the point when tension might be almost unendurable.

Then, possibly, the Kremlin suddenly would give the appearance of backing away from the danger. As in the case of Laos, Khrushchev would express eagerness to talk. And as in the case of Laos, he might then insist upon talking about all Germany rather than just Berlin, and about the notion of German neutrality.

A neutral Germany would solve many Khrushchev problems, not the least of which is West German participation in the European Common Market and the growing tendency in Western Europe toward political integration. Khrushchev probably considers such developments more dangerous even than the existence of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Offers N-Treaty Concessions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disarmament negotiator Arthur H. Dean said yesterday President Kennedy's offer of new concessions for a nuclear test-ban treaty with the Soviet Union will strengthen his hand when he returns to Geneva on Friday.

"I think the President's statement will enable us to sound out the Soviet Union and determine if it is interested in effectively controlled disarmament with the general obligatory principle of on-site inspections," he told reporters after briefing the Senate Disarmament subcommittee.

"The new data resulting from recent tests and the President's statement will give us a number of new arguments and will be very effective."

Final decisions on U.S. strategy for a determined test-ban to check the nuclear arms race were made at a White House conference presided over by Kennedy late Wednesday.

Fatally Hurt In Trailer Ram
BEDFORD, Pa. (AP) — A speeding tractor-trailer smashed against the rear of another tractor-trailer on the Pennsylvania Turnpike Friday, fatally injuring Earl B. Lapp, 26, state police said.

Officers said Lapp of Little R.D. 3 in Lancaster County apparently fell asleep before his truck, traveling very fast, rammed into one driven by Wilbur M. Pinnell, 49, of Hopevale, Ohio. The mishap occurred about three miles west of the Bedford interchange. Lapp died about six hours later at Bedford Memorial Hospital. Pinnell escaped injury.

New 25-Story Apartment Hotel
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Equitable Life disclosed plans Friday for a new 25-story apartment hotel in downtown Pittsburgh. It will cost in excess of $10 million.

The building will be built at the tip of the Golden Triangle, commonly known as "The Point," where the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers converge to form the Ohio River.

It will contain more than 300 apartments and 1,300 rooms. This is the tenth building in the Gateway Center complex developed by Equitable Life.

Burns Son, Gets 60 Days

BUTLER, Pa. (AP) — A 43-year-old Butler County woman, accused of burning her 9-year-old son with an iron and a cigarette, was given a 60-day jail term Friday for cruelty to minors.

Alderman Harold C. Armstrong sentenced Mrs. Margaret Piper of Butler, mother of two, after she was unable to pay a fine of $200 and costs.

Police said they arrested her on Wednesday after she reported her son, Charles, was missing. The child, officers said, was found crying in a neighbor's yard with burns about the face and arms.

Officers said Charles told them his mother had burned him with a cigarette and an electric iron as punishment. She said the burning with the iron was an accident.

Charles and his 7-year-old brother, Gary, will be turned over to a foster boarding home, police said.

Father Of Six Killed At Work

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—A father of six children, who returned to work Thursday after an eight-month layoff, was crushed to death Friday in a conveyor bucket.

Officials at Barletta Cement Plant said Daniel Strachko, in his 30s, was laid off last Nov. 28 because of production cut backs.

Workers spent 40 minutes freeing him from the conveyor system, which carries sand and gravel to a cement mixing unit. Lt. Leonard Campanelli, of the Hazleton city police, theorized Strachko may have suffered a weak spell and fell into the conveyor bucket. He said normally anyone falling into the slow moving bucket should be able to free himself.

Better Service

By William A. Doyle

Q. Recently I decided to redeem some shares of a mutual fund I owned for cash. I took the certificate for the shares, properly endorsed and guaranteed, to the main office of the big New York City bank which acts as custodian and transfer agent for the mutual fund.

I arrived at that office about 10:30 a.m. After waiting for some time, I was told to go to a different office of the bank several blocks away. There I had to wait again. I finally was able to turn in the shares for redemption at 11:15 a.m. I received the following day's redemption price — $17.54 a share. The redemption price on the day I delivered the shares was $18.07. But that price was in effect only until 11 a.m.

It was not my fault that the transaction was not completed before 11 a.m. It was the bank's fault for making me wait. What is your opinion?

A. I agree with you. Even though the people at the bank followed the regulations on this right down to the letter, you should have had better service. I suggest that you write to the officers of the mutual fund and explain things just as you did to me.

I'm sending you a personal letter, telling you who to contact at the mutual fund. I have already spoken to the people at the fund. They promise to give you satisfaction. I edited the name of the fund out of your letter because this mixup was not the fund's fault.

However, the subject of mutual fund "pricing" should be of general interest to all readers.

All mutual funds figure out their prices in roughly the same way. A mutual fund adds all its assets (value of securities it owns, cash on hand, accounts receivable, etc.) subtracts its liabilities and divides by the number of shares outstanding.

The resulting figure is the "asset value per share" — the actual value behind each share of the fund. For most funds the asset value per share is the redemption price — the amount of money you will receive if you redeem your shares. Some mutual funds do charge a redemption fee of about 1 percent. In the case of those funds, the redemption price is less than the asset value.

Because the figures used to compute the per share asset value change almost constantly, the mutual funds must go through these calculations at least once a day. Most mutual funds do it twice a day.

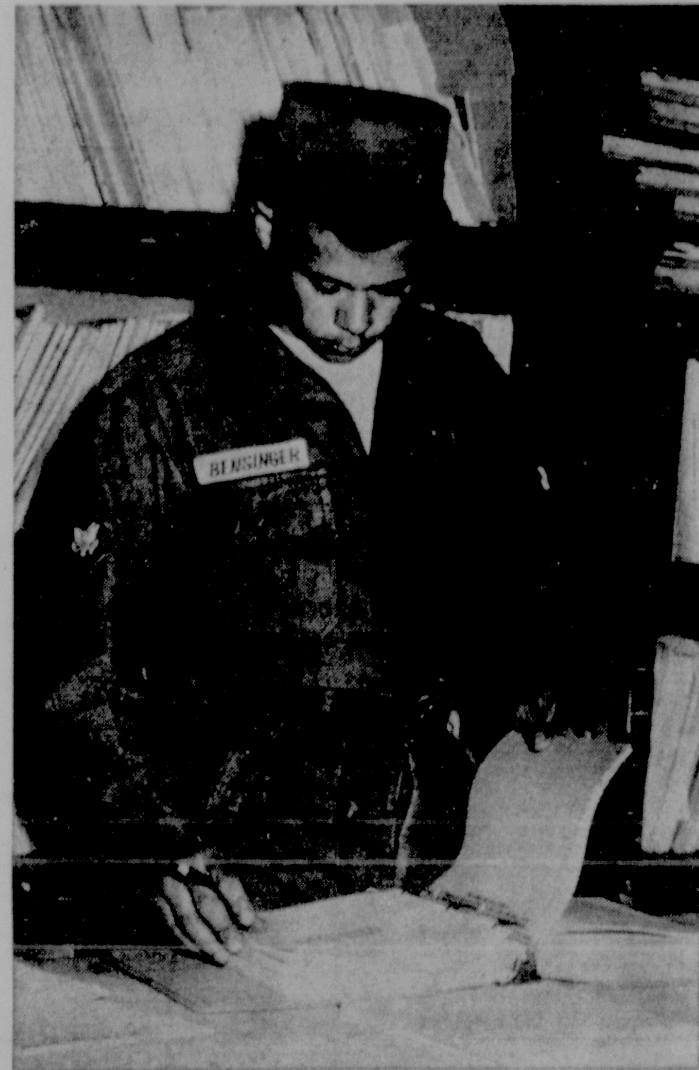

A shareholder who redeems his shares gets whatever redemption price is in effect at the time his shares are turned in.

Most mutual funds "price shares" at the close of each business day and at the middle of each business day. In a typical case, the price figured at the close of a business day goes into effect at 4:30 p.m. and remains in effect until 11 a.m. the following business day. Then the midday pricing goes into effect — until 4:30 p.m.

As can be seen in these cases, you buy or redeem your shares at prices already established — even though the underlying value of the shares may have gone higher or lower as the result of rise or fall in value of the securities which the fund holds.

However, some funds "price forward." This means that you buy or redeem shares at prices that will be established at the next pricing — not the previous pricing. In any case, whatever method each fund uses is spelled out in the prospectus issued by that fund.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Exams For Mental Health Workers

HARRISBURG — The State Civil Service Commission has scheduled a competitive examination September 22 for volunteer services coordinator I, specialized work in the Office of Mental Health, Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare. Applications are due August 29.

Volunteer services coordinators work with the directors of volunteer services of state schools and hospitals for the mentally retarded. They provide guidance and consultative services in coordinating the communities' volunteer resources with the treatment program of the schools and hospitals. The salary range is $7055 to $9454. Candidates for these posts need four years' college plus a master's degree and six years' experience working with volunteers in the fields of community welfare, recreation, education or social services, including three years' administrative or supervisory experience in an institution. An equivalent combination of experience for admittance to the examination.

The written test will be held at some or all of the following cities: Allentown, Altoona, Clearfield, DuBois, Erie, Harrisburg, Johnstown, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, and Williamsport. Out-of-state applicants may arrange to have tests administered within their state of residence.

Signalmen Entertain At Open House

AS a result of a newspaper article in the local paper, the troops of the 128th Signal Company (Depot), Tobyhanna Signal Depot, Pennsylvania, decided to have Open House for the local citizens of Florence, South Carolina, and vicinity.

All facilities were on display to the general public to include: Supply, Command Headquarters, Maintenance, Motor Pool tents and the Enlisted and Officers quarters. Special radio relay equipment, power generator, and voice telephone and teletypewriter net, with a welcome message to the citizens, were on display.

Cold drinks were served to the public from the mess hall. The female citizens were quite surprised at the facilities of the field kitchen arrangement. Over 200 citizens enjoyed the demonstration.
